B2AI Voice

Participants Needed!

About this study: Researchers at MIT, in collaboration with Cornell University, the University of South Florida and other institutions, are conducting a study examining voice as a biomarker, or indicator for diagnosing and treating mental health conditions. The study will take around an hour to complete, and participants will be compensated $50.

Adults who have a clinical diagnosis of a mood disorder/mental health condition and live in the Boston area are invited to participate!

To Join,
Scan Here

For more information, please contact us at: research@b2ai.org

Bridge2AI Voice
Voice as a Biomarker of Health

MIT

USF Health
Voice Center